

AMCAS® Program Preliminary Data Elements

American Medical College Application Service® (AMCAS®) Preliminary Data allows medical school programs to receive high-level, initial data about their applicants upon submitting an application to their school, but before they have been verified by the AMCAS program.

Additional Notes:

- Preliminary data does not include information about applicants' metrics, academics, test scores, essays, or experiences.
- Once the AMCAS program verifies the application, medical schools receive full application data.
